PUBLIC HEARING
Planning: Sensitive Areas Ordinance

This being the date set and proper notices having been posted and published in accordance with local and State laws, Mayor Tanner opened the public hearing to consider the proposed changes to the Sensitive Areas Ordinance.

Rob Jenkins, Senior Planner, stated for the record that as part of their review of the proposed Sensitive Areas Ordinance, staff, the Planning Commission and the Planning and Development Committee are addressing how “best available science” was addressed in ordinance preparation. The various methods used by the City are documented in a memorandum dated 12/22/99 to Rebecca Lind, Principial Planner for the City, from Lisa Grueter, senior planner with the consulting firm of Bucher, Willis and Ratliff. This memorandum, which is currently under review by the Planning Commission and the Planning & Development Committee, is entered into the record by reference. Mr. Jenkins added that how the topic of best available science is balanced with other policies of the Comprehensive Plan will be discussed and documented with the Planning Commission and the Planning & Development Committee following this public hearing, and entered as a matter of public record at that time.

Continuing, Mr. Jenkins said the proposed changes are: reorganize and amend existing sensitive areas regulations relating to flood hazards, geologic hazards and wetlands; establish new regulation of critical habitat areas; and establish reserved sections from aquifer protection and shorelines, streams and lakes. The changes are being proposed because an overlap currently exists between the City’s wetlands regulations, tree-cutting and land-clearing regulations, and greenbelt regulations.

The proposed changes affect various sections of the ordinance, including the general penalty chapter, the administration and enforcement chapter, the development guidelines & regulations section, the grading, mining and excavation section. The flood hazard, greenbelt and wetland regulations sections have been deleted and their concepts and language folded into other parts of the Code.

Mr. Jenkins explained that the proposed changes have many objectives. These are to:

1. Retain regulations which are consistent with the Comprehensive Plan;
2. Ensure that Comprehensive Plan policies are being implemented;
3. Keep current with environmental case law;
4. Organize existing and future environmental regulations into one section;
5. Reassess regulations to create a balance between resource protection, enforcement, and fairness to property owners; and
6. Create a framework in which the requirements of the Endangered Species Act can be addressed.

Mr. Jenkins noted that regulations pertaining to the Endangered Species Act will be added to the “Shorelines, Streams and Lakes” section of the Sensitive Areas Ordinance once the federal government has established protective rules for the Chinook salmon and the Bull trout, both of which have been declared endangered.

Continuing, Mr. Jenkins said the Sensitive Areas Ordinance delineates the following six sensitive areas: flood hazards, geologic hazards, habitat conservation, wetlands, aquifer recharge and shorelines/strems/lakes. The language addresses exempt and prohibited activities in the various areas, and includes both new and modified language describing how sensitive areas and their buffers are to be protected. For example, with respect to habitat conservation, the new section requires certain things before new development can proceed, as follows: assessments of critical plant or wildlife habitats; establishments of native growth protection areas; and mitigation for any disturbance to existing habitat.

One significant change in the Grading, Excavation and Mining regulations would prohibit the creation, through cut and fill procedures, of subdivision lots with 40% or greater slopes. Also, new language in the Tree Cutting and Land Clearing section would require approved land development permits prior to tree cutting or land clearing related to new development. This section would additionally establish new criteria for when thinning of timber stands is allowed.

Mr. Jenkins concluded that the Planning Commission is scheduled to complete its review of this subject on January 19th. This matter will remain in Council’s Planning & Development Committee pending a report from the Planning Commission and a recommendation to the full Council.

Audience comment was invited.

David Halinen, 10500 NE 8th St., Bellevue, 98004, submitted copies of a letter he wrote in December to the Planning Commission on this subject. The letter requested that the proposed new method of measuring steep slopes not be adopted, and that the current slope definition instead be retained with minor modifications. Mr. Halinen said because natural slopes are never uniform, the proposed new definition is not suited for analysis of the kinds of slopes which must routinely be addressed. He pointed out that the proposed definition refers to “distinct topographic breaks” relating to benches or plateaus of unspecified parameters, but such vague terms should be avoided wherever possible.

Mr. Halinen then requested specific changes to the section titled “Slopes 40% (Forty Percent) or Greater” to add two new exceptions to this prohibition, as follows: a) filling against the base of a 40% or greater slope pursuant to previous grading or mining activities; and b) grading to the extent that it eliminates all or portion(s) of a 40% or greater slope. Mr. Halinen claimed that these activities would actually lessen or even eliminate the risk of slope failures.

MOVED BY KEOLKER-WHEELER, SECONDED BY NELSON, COUNCIL REFER MR. HALINEN’S LETTER ON THIS SUBJECT TO THE PLANNING & DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE AND PLANNING STAFF, WITH COPIES TO THE PLANNING COMMISSION. CARRIED.

Larry Brosman, 3625 NE 9th St., Renton, 98056, chair of the Planning Commission, said that the Commission has not yet received Mr. Halinen’s letter on the 40% slope issue but will consider it at their January 19th meeting.
There being no further audience comment, it was MOVED BY PARKER, SECONDED BY NELSON, COUNCIL CLOSE THE PUBLIC HEARING. CARRIED.
